Union Registry Accounts

Trading Account vs. Operator Holding Account

The Trading Account and Operator Holding Account are two distinct components within the European Union Emissions Trading System (EU ETS). Here's an explanation of the difference between these two types of accounts

| Operator Holding Account (ISM Company only)                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                           | Trading Account                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                   |

Significantly less documentation is required to open Operator Holding Accounts, since Operator Holding Accounts are mandatory while Trading Accounts are voluntary.

Who is responsible for Compliance?

The EU definition

“The shipping company is defined as ‘the shipowner or any other organisation or person, such as the manager or the bareboat charterer, that has assumed the responsibility for the operation of the ship from the shipowner and that, on assuming such responsibility, has agreed to take over all the duties and responsibilities imposed by the International Management Code for the Safe Operation of Ships and for Pollution Prevention, set out in Annex I to Regulation (EC) No 336/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council.’The shipping company always remains the responsible entity for surrendering allowances.”

Which do you need – if any?

|                        | Operator Holding Account | Trading Account | Alternative                                                                                                                 |

- The Registered Owner must have an operator holding account enabling them to be compliant. Only this account facilitates compliance and has the functionality to surrender allowances. The Registered Owner can give the responsibility for surrendering allowances to another company through a document called a Mandate, in which case the company that receives this responsibility must open an operator holding account.
- The operators or charterers who are not directly responsible for compliance can use a Trading Account to settle allowances with their counterparty. They may, however, also agree on cash settlement and forward instruments eliminating the need for an EU ETS account.

Maritime Operator Holding Account

IN WHICH COUNTRY SHOULD THE SHIPPING COMPANY OPEN A MARITIME OPERATOR HOLDING ACCOUNT (MOHA)?

Each shipping company covered by the EU ETS has to be associated with the Administering Authority of one EU Member State/Country. A shipping company is associated to a Member State according to the attribution list published by the Commission on 31 January 2024.

- For new shipping companies not included in the attribution list but performing voyages covered by the EU ETS Directive, they should identify which is their Administering Authority via the THETIS-MRV system. The THETIS-MRV helpdesk will help the companies assign their responsible Administering Authority in the system. The helpdesk may be contacted through the following email address: thetis@emsa.europa.eu.
- While registered owners are by default responsible for EU ETS compliance, they can decide to outsource this to the “ISM Company” (e.g., managers). To do so, they need a clearly stated mandate signed by the registered owner and ISM Company and submit this to the EU country they were assigned to, as well as their verification agent who verifies their emissions reports (e.g., DNV).
- (See EC FAQ for further details.)

Next Steps

Are you in a rush?

I need a Maritime Operator Holding Account

- The EU published the Attribution List on 31 January 2024.
- If you are on the list then you can open a Maritime Operator Holding Account. Additionally, if you are not the Registered Owner, you will need a Mandate from them.
- If you are not on the list but need a Maritime Operator Holding Account, you must get a Mandate from the Registered Owner and submit it to your Administering Authority. Further, you need to inform THETIS-MRV of the change.

As a rule of thumb, always refer to your Administering Authority should you need clarity. See specific country requirements in the following.

I need a Trading Account

- Can you manage with cash settlements to your counterparties?
- Can you manage risk using forward instruments instead of buying and holding allowance?

The demands from your commercial counterparts will partly decide if you need a trading account or if you can adopt a wait and see strategy.

For opening a Maritime Operational Holding Account in the EU registry

As per Article 15a of the Union Registry Regulation:

Within 40 working days of the publication of the list, or, for shipping companies not included in that list, within 65 working days of the first EU-related voyage, the shipping company shall provide the relevant National Administrator with the information set out in Annex VIIa to this Regulation and shall request the National Administrator to open a Maritime Operator Holding Account (MOHA) in the Union Registry.

Each National Administrator (EU Country) may have slightly different processes and information requirements to open MOHAs, and some do not yet have the application forms ready yet.

Our recommendation is therefore to reach out to your National Administrator to ensure you follow the right process and documentation requirements specific to that country. The contact details for each country can be found below, and some National Administrators have already contacted the shipping companies that were assigned to their country to start the process.

How to create an EU-login on the union registry

EU Login is the entry gate to sign into different European Commission services and/or other systems. EU Login verifies your identity and allows recovering your personal settings, history and access rights in a secure way. You can sign in using social media accounts or the EU Login account.

Shipping companies that wish to open a MOHA with the Maltese National Registry Administrator (NRA) should contact the NRA at the email address emissions\_trading\_scheme@mra.org.mt

It is important to note that a MOHA may only be opened with the NRA of the Member State to which a shipping company is attributed, in accordance with the rules set out in Article 3 of Directive 2003/87/EC as amended. We have sent a letter to all the shipping companies that have been attributed to Malta in the official attribution list published by the European Commission last week. If a shipping company, be it a shipowner or an ISM, is not listed under Malta in the Commission list, and, or, has reasons to believe that it should be attributed to Malta, it is also important to contact us as soon as possible, providing relevant information so that we can follow-up with the relevant authorities.

We encourage shipping companies to whom we have sent the afore-mentioned letter, to provide us as soon as possible with the information requested via that letter. We will then follow-up with an application form, which also includes detailed information on the documentation that shipping companies will need to submit as part of their application for a MOHA. The requirements of the Maltese NRA closely reflect the requirements for the opening of MOHAs as set out in the Union Registry Regulation, as amended.
